Todd McKendrick, almost in action

With the recent success of Notary Reg Chow in the Vancouver Marathon—while wearing his Team Notary hat—MacCaulay McColl’s Todd McKendrick took his own Team Notary hat to New Orleans to give him a sporting edge. For this shot, the unsuspecting Todd leaned against a signpost unsteadied by years of Bourbon Street patrons. As the shutter clicked, the post and Todd fell over.

Following publication of each Scrivener (except Spring issues), Macaulay McColl will hold a draw for a pair of Canucks hockey tickets. Interested BC Notaries are asked to mail their business cards to Todd McKendrick, Macaulay McColl (see page 2 of this magazine for the address). Please write “Hockey Draw” on the back of your card.

Proud grandfather, Delta Notary John Eastwood

Delta Notary John Eastwood is a grandfather! Maizie Iola Eastwood Lilles—firstborn for daughter Lisa Eastwood and her husband Greg Lilles—was born at 3:07 AM on August 6, Lisa’s birthday. Both Vancouver lawyers, Lisa is a tax lawyer and Greg is a litigator. John and his wife Byranne were present for the event. (John was late for a Directors’ conference call that morning.)

Fariborz (Fred) Khasha, BC Notary student and a writer for Paivand, a weekly Persian newspaper published in Vancouver, recently translated “Wills and Estates,” an article by Dr. Bernard Hoeter originally published in The Scrivener in 1996. A Certified Translator and Court Interpreter (Canada) from Farsi to English and English to Farsi, Fred writes for The TRANSletter, a publication of the Society of Translators & Interpreters of British Columbia (STIBC).

Trevor Todd, in Tehran, in front of the former American Embassy, now known locally as the “Den of Spies.”

In late July 2003, lawyer Trevor Todd spent nine days in Dubai and Tehran. Trevor had to be careful taking photos; he arrived in Tehran shortly after a Canadian journalist was allegedly beaten to death for photographing a prison. The entire front wall of the “Den,” now a US military base, is painted in anti-American graffiti.

Richard John Ringer, our member in Salmon Arm, passed away suddenly on Sunday, June 22. He was commissioned as a BC Notary on May 4, 1993. Richard’s ashes were spread in the hills surrounding Kamloops where he was born and raised and spent many happy hours, hiking and camping.
