

I've just viewed your Summer Scrivener online. Thank you for including Lloyd Johnson's story. I will be proud to distribute hard copies of this issue to Lloyd's next-of-kin.

After he developed cancer, Lloyd had a strong desire to invest in cancer prevention research because he didn't want others to go through the same experience. I am privileged to have the opportunity to help him create his legacy. You and your team at The Scrivener have had a hand in creating his legacy, as well.

How delighted we were to receive a copy of The Scrivener and to read Mr. Atkin's lovely feature on the Victoria Foundation's Students Who Care – Youth in Philanthropy program. His article describes perfectly how our program operates and our goals in introducing young people in our community to philanthropy.

We are grateful to receive such enthusiastic and public support. Organizations like yours, through your advocacy, help us to "connect people who care with causes that matter." Thank you again for this wonderful display of support for our young people and for the Foundation.

Thank you so much for the opportunity to tell my story, "A Little Boy's Legacy: Jeremy's Memorial Foundation Against Domestic Violence," in the Summer 2007 issue of The Scrivener. All the feedback has been very positive and motivating.

Family abuse can strike when and where you least expect it, leaving behind shattered lives. We all need to be vigilant and supportive of the victims. Let's also refuse to condone or remain silent about domestic violence.

In our quest to raise awareness of this dreadful blight on society, we truly valued the exposure through your professional magazine. Your kind words and guidance were much appreciated. The Scrivener is helping to make the world a better place. Together, we are making a difference.

Sincerely,
Donna Gillette, President
Jeremy's Memorial Foundation
Against Domestic Violence
