Nick and Brenda Aubin are proud to announce the birth of their healthy baby girl, born November 12, 2007, at 10:10 AM. Katelyn Margaret—which means pure pearl—weighed 6 lbs, 14 oz, and was 50 cm long. Grandparents are Melody Aubin, Laurent Aubin, Sharon Fletcher, and Jack Catenacci. Special thanks to Brenda’s sister Angela Bezaire, who was in the delivery room with the couple.

“Katelyn has her mom’s looks and seems to be getting her dad’s height. Lucky for her,” Nick says. “She will be home-schooled and not allowed out until she is 30! No flowers, please. Send diapers!”

To the total delight of his parents Akash and Raj Sablok and grandparents Tarlok and Shabnam Sablok and Balwinder Grewal, wife of the late Iqbal Singh Grewal, first grandchild Aryan Sablok arrived on October 18, 2007, at 10 PM, weighing 7 pounds, 11 ounces.

According to Wikipedia, Aryan is an English-language word derived from the Sanskrit and Avestan term rya, meaning “noble” or “spiritual.” It is widely held to have been used as an ethnic self-designation of the Proto-

Indo-Iranians. In the 19th century, the Indo-Iranians—the most ancient known speakers of Indo-European languages—adopted the word Aryan to refer not only to the Indo-Iranian people, but to Indo-European speakers as a whole.
